Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Reynolds, Vol. 7 Sir Joshua Reynolds was born on July i 6, 1723, at Plympton, Devonshire, where his father, the Reverend Samuel Reynolds, rector of the Plympton Grammar School, initiated him into those classical studies which, later, contributed to the refinement and grace of his pencil. He early discovered an inclination for his art to the dissatisfaction ot his father, who would have made him an apothccarv bv diligently copying the prints that fell in his way, and by mastering and applying, while in his eighth year, the Jesuits Rules of Perspective, and, afterwards, Richardsons Theory of Painting. Overborne bv the advice of friends, the senior Revnolds was, in 1740, induced to yield to his sons preference of the palette and brush over the mortar and pestle; and Joshua was sent to London and placed under the tuition of Hudson, a portrait-painter of more vogue and pretension than merit. Under this barren source of instruction, however, he rapidly overtook his master, who soon contrived to make things so unpleasant for the too promising pupil that he remained in the studio but two of the four years for which he was bound, returning in 1743 to Devonshire, and setting up for himself as a portrait-painter. He settled at Plymouth, where hemet with prompt and unexpected success, painting some thirtv portraits, and finding patrons whose good offices secured his future success. While at Plymouth, Commodore Keppel, to whom he had been recommended bv Lord Edgcumbe, his Hfe-long fi-iend and patron, being appointed to the Mediterranean Station, invited the young painter to accompany him; and he accordingly sailed from Plvmouth earlv in 1749, and on his arrival at...
